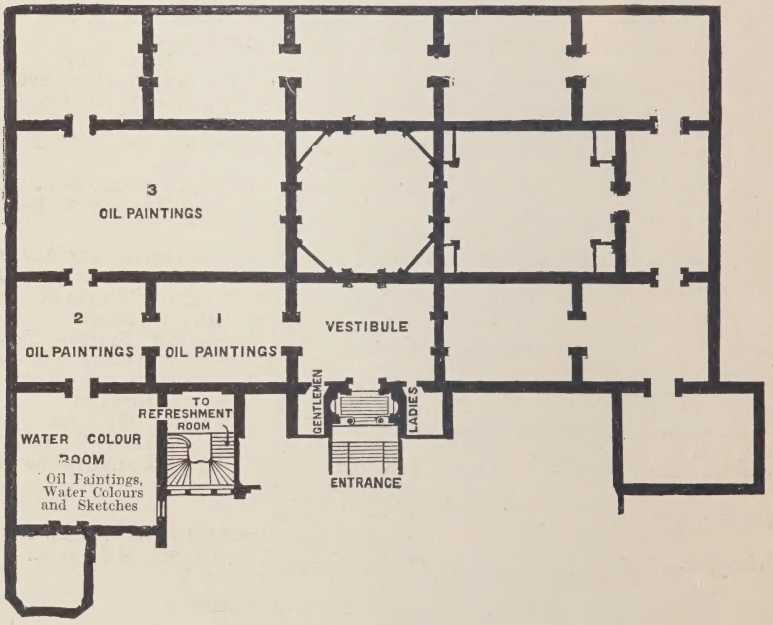
PLAN OF THE GALLERIES.



SIR LAWRENCE ALMA-TADEMA,

R.A. O.M.

Born 1836. A.R.A. 1876; R.A. 1879. Died 1912.

Lawrence (or Lourens as he was christened) Alma-Tadema was born on January 8, 1836, at the village of Dronryp, near Leeuwarden in Holland, the youngest son of Pieter Tadema, a notary. His mother, of whom there is a portrait in the Exhibition (No. 15), was early left a widow with a large family to bring up, two her own, the others her husband's by his first marriage. Lawrence was four years old at the time of his father's death. At that early age he already showed signs of the artistic bent of his nature—witness the drawings here exhibited (No. 88)—and though the res angusta domi condemned him to a stool in a lawyer's office, he spent every spare moment sketching and drawing, and at fifteen he painted a portrait of his sister which was exhibited in a Dutch gallery, and a year later a portrait of himself (No. 14).

The continued struggle between the desire to do his duty and the longing to follow his inclination brought on a serious illness. His recovery, at one time despaired of, was greatly helped by the decision arrived at by his mother and guardians to allow him to abandon the law and pursue the study of art. Schools in Holland not being for one reason and another available, he went to Antwerp and entered the Academy there under Gustav Wappers. Three of the early pictures, two oils and a water colour, painted during this period, are in the Exhibition (Nos. 28, 122 and 136). From the Academy he passed into the studio of the Belgian historical painter Henri Leys, and assisted him in the painting of the frescoes in the hall of the Hôtel de Ville at Antwerp in 1859. Pictures now began to follow in quick succession from his brush, "The Education of the Children of Clovis," painted in 1861, being one of the most notable, and gaining for him the following year his first gold medal at Amsterdam. This picture and others of the same period, of which No. 26 in the present Exhibition is an example, represent incidents culled from Gregory of Tours' "History of the Franks."

Following on these subjects from Merovingian Chronicles came scenes from the lives and customs of the Ancient Egyptians. The first was "Egyptians Three Thousand Years Ago," painted in 1863, of which No. 30 is a replica. Others of the same kind followed at intervals, such as "Egyptien à la Porte" (No. 11); at a later period, "The Death of the First-born" (No. 8); and in 1904, after he had visited the land of the Pharaohs, "The Finding of Moses" (No. 155).

His first classical subject illustrating the modes of life under various aspects of the Greeks and Romans was painted in 1865, the year in which, with the French lady he had married in 1863, he moved from Antwerp to Brussels. Among the pictures here exhibited during his four years' stay in that town may be mentioned "Honeymoon" (No. 59), "Tarquinius Superbus" (No. 5), "A Lover of Art" (No. 34), "The Parthenon at Athens" (No. 22), "The Pyrrhic Dance" (No. 6), "The Convalescent" (No. 16), and "Confidences" (No. 9).

In 1869 his wife died, and the year following he settled in London with his two daughters. It was in 1869 that he first exhibited at the Royal Academy, the pictures being "The Pyrrhic Dance" and "A Lover of Art," already referred to. From that time onward his career was one of continued success. Among the principal pictures which he produced during the first years of his residence in England were "The Vintage Festival" (No. 200), "Death of the First-born" (No. 8), "A Picture Gallery" (No. 165), "A Sculpture Gallery" (No. 175), "Water Pets" (No. 63), "An Audience at Agrippa's" (No. 51). This last, exhibited in 1876, procured him his election as an Associate of the Royal Academy. He had previously in 1873 taken out letters of denization in England. His election as an Academician followed in 1879. Among the chief pictures painted during the interval between these two events were "A Hearty Welcome" (No. 25), "After the Audience" (No. 202), and "A Pomona Festival" (No. 12).

The artist was now at the zenith of his fame, and each year saw some important pictures issue from his studio, most of them illustrative of ancient architecture and of ancient history or incident, as e.g.: "Ave, Cæsar, Io Saturnalia" (No. 204), "The Women of Amphissa" (No. 198), "The Roses of Heliogabalus" (No. 53), "A Dedication to Bacchus" (No. 196), "The Finding of Moses" (No. 155), "Caracalla and Geta" (No. 170), and many other works which, if on a smaller scale, are equally remarkable for beauty of design and exquisite finish of workmanship. Many portraits also belong to this period of his career, including his own, which he painted by request for the Uffizi Gallery at Florence. And in addition to all this, his indefatigable industry found further scope in designing the scenery for plays. Some of his designs for Coriolanus are in the present Exhibition (Nos. 129, 131, 133).

In 1871, the year after he came to England, Alma-Tadema married Miss Laura Epps (No. 18), herself an artist of distinction, and settled in a house in Townshend Terrace, overlooking the Regent's Park. Thence he moved, in 1886, to the Grove End Road, where he built himself a house which in all the details of its construction, the beauty of the materials employed, and their application revealed the mind of its author. Happy were those—and they were many—who had the opportunity of seeing it and the treasures it contained, and enjoying the unbounded hospitality of its distinguished owner.

Many honours fell to his lot. His membership of the Royal Academy has been already referred to; he was also a member of the Royal Society of Painters in Water Colours, and an Honorary Member of the Royal Scottish Academy; also of the Royal Institute of British Architects, and of the American Institute of Architects. His foreign honours included membership of the Institute of France, and of the Royal Academies of Amsterdam, Antwerp, Berlin, Munich, Madrid, Milan, Sweden, Vienna, and St. Luke at Rome. Knighthood was bestowed on him by Queen Victoria in 1899, and the Order of Merit by King Edward VII. in 1905. His foreign Orders included the Legion of Honour of France, the Pour le Mérite of Germany, Leopold of Belgium, the Lion of the Netherlands, the Lion of Nassau, St. Michael of Bavaria, and many others. Dublin gave him the degree of Litt.D., and Durham made him a D.C.L. The medals gained by him at various Exhibitions were many; and he also received the Royal Gold Medal of the Royal Institute of British Architects.

His death took place on June 25, 1912, at Wiesbaden, whither he had gone in the hope of recovering from an illness from which he had been suffering for some time. He was buried in St. Paul's Cathedral on July 5.

There is a bust of Sir Lawrence Alma-Tadema, by the late Mr. E. Onslow Ford, R.A., in Gallery III.

CATALOGUE.

The numbers follow from left to right.

The Portraits are described under four sizes:—"bust," the head and shoulders; "half figure," to the waist; "three-quarter figure," to the knee and below; "full length," the entire figure.

The terms "to right," "to left," and "on right" "on left," in all descriptions denote the right and left of the spectator.

In the sizes of the Works the height is always placed before the width.

The initials G.G. in brackets indicate that the picture was shown at the Exhibition of Sir L. Alma-Tadema's works at the Grosvenor Gallery in the winter of 1882-83.

3 CORNER OF A COURTYARD IN AMSTERDAM.

THE ARCHDEACON OF DURHAM AND
MRS. WILLIAM WATKINS.

On the l. is a doorway, with a pump fixed to the wall beside it. Signed and dated, "L. Alma-Tadema, 1855." (G.G.) Canvas, 18 by 16 in.

4 THE FLOWER MARKET.

MESSRS. MAPLE & Co.

A shop occupies most of the r. of the picture; on the l. is the flower girl seated among her wares; standing near are an elderly man, and a girl, and a young man. The artist wrote in 1911, that he intended the young man in the picture to play the rôle of the lover who comes to buy flowers to send, and is unable to make up his mind. Painted 1868. Panel, 16½ by 22½ in.

5 TARQUINIUS SUPERBUS.

MRS. H. L. DE CANDOLE.

Tarquinius giving his answer to the messengers who enquired what should be done with the principal townspeople of Gubii.

The interior of a garden court, with poppies in the foreground. On the r. stands Tarquinius, holding a sceptre, with which he is cutting off the heads of the tallest flowers; opposite to him, on the l., are a woman bearing a salver on which are keys, and two messengers holding sprigs of myrtle. Signed and dated, "L. Alma-Tadema, '67." (G.G.) Panel, 22½ by 15 in.

6 THE PYRRHIC DANCE.

CORPORATION OF LONDON.

The Pyrrhic dance, which was of Doric origin, was the most celebrated of the war dances of the ancients, and was intended to represent the rapid movements of the body both in attack and defence.

A band of warriors is advancing in the arena from the l., towards the principal spectators in the amphitheatre; they are crouching beneath their shields, held in the l. hand, while the r. grasps a long spear; between the columns on the l. is seen a dense crowd. Signed and dated, "L. Alma-Tadema, 1869." (G.G.) Panel, 16 by 32 in.

This picture and No. 34 were the first pictures exhibited by the artist at the Royal Academy.

7 A ROMAN PICTURE GALLERY.

W. K. D'Arcy, Esq.

The title originally given to this picture by the artist was "Amateur de Tableaux."

The painter is standing in the centre and showing a picture placed upon an easel to four persons, three men seated, and a lady reclining on a couch; behind them two other figures, with their backs to the spectator, are examining the paintings on the wall. Signed and dated, "L. Alma-Tadema, 1867." Panel, 23 by 18 in.

8 THE DEATH OF THE FIRST-BORN.

Executors of the late Sir L. Alma-Tadema, R.A.

The interior of an Egyptian temple, dimly lighted by a lamp, with priests praying and musicians playing on instruments. At the base of a pillar Pharaoh is seated upon a low stool, and across his knees lies the body of his first-born son, clasped in the arms of his mother, who is bending over him; on the l. is the physician. The light of the moon is shining through the doorway on the r., outside which are seen the figures of Moses and Aaron. Painted 1872. (G.G.) Canvas, 29½ by 48 in.

A portion of an early version of this picture is seen in No. 2.

9 CONFIDENCES.

Lord Joicey.

Two girls, one dark and the other fair, seated on a couch in the corner of a room; beside them is a table on which are several plants in pots; one girl is smelling a flower and leaning over towards the other. Signed and dated, "L. Alma-Tadema, 1869." (G.G.) Panel, 22 by 15 in.

10 A ROMAN AMATEUR.

James Briggs-Bury, Esq.

The atrium of a Roman house. The amateur is seated beside a table, on which is a golden lapis lazuli statuette of Venus, which he is showing to some visitors, three men and a lady; through the columns on the l. is seen a garden court with hilly landscape beyond; fountain and statue to r. Signed and dated, "L. Alma-Tadema, 1868." (G.G.) Panel, 21 by 31½ in.

MESSRS. MAPLE & CO.

A young girl lying back at full-length upon a tiger skin, and playing with a black cat; on the r. is a short flight of steps leading down into a garden. Signed, "L. Alma-Tadema, op. cliii." Painted 1875. (G.G.) Panel, 10½ by 35½ in.

LENT BY

24 A ROMAN STUDIO.

A. T. Hollingsworth, Esq.

The title originally given to this picture by the artist was "Antistius Labeon," whose name, according to the latest authorities, was properly "Titidius Labeo." He was a pro-consul of Gallia Narbonensis, and lived in the time of Vespasian. He was an amateur artist, who painted small panel pictures for his amusement.

On the l. Labeo stands with one foot on a seat; he holds a painting and leans forward towards three figures, an old man and two ladies, who are seated before an easel on which is a picture. Signed, "L. Alma-Tadema, op. cxxxvi." Painted 1874. (G.G.) Panel, 26½ by 37½ in.

25 A HEARTY WELCOME.

The Archdeacon of Durham and
Mrs. William Watkins.

The father and mother and the two children are portraits of the artist, his wife, and daughters.

In an enclosed garden full of flowers stands a child who is welcoming home her mother; behind them is an older child bending down to call a dog, and in the r. background the father, with a scroll in his hand, is coming down a flight of steps; near one of the pillars on the l. is a woman with a child. Signed, "L. Alma-Tadema, op. cxc." Painted 1878. (G.G.) Panel, 12 by 36 in.

26 THE AMBUSCADE.

A. Preyer, Esq.

The title originally given to this picture by the artist was "Gunthram Bose." It illustrates a story in Gregory of Tours' "History of the Franks." A party of travellers are being attacked in a wooded gorge by a number of armed men. Signed and dated, "L. Alma-Tadema, 1862." (G.G.) Canvas, 26 by 39 in.

27 THE LAST ROSES.

Lady John Joicey-Cecil.

Small full-length figure of a lady, standing beside a small altar in a wood; she is about to place on it some roses out of a vase which she carries. Signed and dated, "L. Alma-Tadema, '72." (G.G.) Panel, 18 by 15 in.

LENT BY

28 THE INUNDATION OF 1421.

W. E. Cain, Esq.

During the great inundation of the Zuyder Zee in 1421, in which whole villages were destroyed, a baby was saved by a cat, which by jumping from side to side of the cradle as the water reached its feet, kept it afloat. This child was called by the person who rescued it "Cats," and was the ancestor of Jacob Cats, the celebrated Dutch writer. Signed, "L. Alma-Tadema." Painted 1857. Canvas, 21½ by 25½ in.

29 OLD STAIRCASE AT ANTWERP.

Mrs. Washington Epps.

A winding staircase in the Exchange, at Antwerp, built in the 16th Century. Painted 1854. (G.G.) Canvas, 19½ by 14½ in.

51 AN AUDIENCE AT AGRIPPA'S.

T. J. S. Roberts, Esq.

Marcus Vipsanius Agrippa, one of the most important and distinguished men of the Augustan age. It was chiefly by his aid that Augustus succeeded in making himself master of the Roman Empire.

Agrippa, clothed in red, is descending a broad flight of marble stairs, followed by a number of people. On the r., at the foot of the stairs, is a table, on which are writing materials and a silver figure of Mars. Behind the table are two slaves with bowed heads, and near them is a white marble statue of Augustus. In the foreground, where the staircase turns towards the closed doorway, are waiting three suitors, two men and a girl, the latter with a gift in her hands. Signed, "L. Alma-Tadema, op. clxi." Painted 1876. (G.G.) Panel, 35 by 25 in. See also No. 202.

53 THE ROSES OF HELIOGABALUS.

Sir John Aird, Bt.

Heliogabalus, or Elagabalus, became Emperor at the age of 14, and occupied the throne rather less than four years. The whole of his reign was signalised by acts of folly, superstition, and cruelty.

The picture represents one of the entertainments given by him, during which he ordered a canopy which was stretched over the heads of the guests to be suddenly unfastened, whereupon showers of roses fell upon the heads of the company. In the background is seen the Emperor, with many courtiers in attendance, reclining on a raised couch, and surveying the scene. Signed, "L. Alma-Tadema, op. cclxxxiii." Painted 1888. Canvas, 50 by 84 in.

54 Portrait of MRS. F. D. MILLET.

170 CARACALLA AND GETA.

Messrs. Arthur Tooth & Sons.

The picture is intended to represent a gala performance given in the Flavian Amphitheatre, better known as the Coliseum, by Septimus Severus on the occasion of his bestowing on Bassianus, nicknamed Caracalla, his son by his first wife, the title of Antoninus Cæsar. The Emperor is seated in the Imperial box. Beside him sits Julia Domna, his second wife, who had endeavoured to obtain for her own son Geta the same honour that had been bestowed on Caracalla. She is surreptitiously passing some letters to an attendant. Caracalla is standing to the right of the Emperor, and Geta between his two sisters. The second part of the entertainment, which included bear-baiting, has begun.

Every detail in the picture has been very carefully thought out by the artist, who, in a letter written at the time the picture was painted, gave a most learned description of the construction and arrangement of the Coliseum as he conceived it to have been, and to have looked when full of people, showing in what way the seats may possibly have been filled and the arena utilized.

In this letter he states that he has from the outset counted the number of spectators as he painted them in, and that the number reached was 2500; and adds, "allowing that the columns and garlands hide as many more, this would give a total of 5000 figures for that seventh part of the Coliseum which is shown in the picture, and for the entire building 35,000, the number usually believed to have found room in the auditorium."

Signed, "L. Alma-Tadema, op. ccclxxxii." Painted 1907. Panel, 48½ by 60½ in.

198 THE WOMEN OF AMPHISSA.

MRS. YERBURGH.

During the holy war that followed the taking of Delphi by the Phocians, it chanced that the Chyades, women sacred to Dionysos, were seized with religious frenzy, and wandering aimlessly came at night to the city of Amphissa, which was in league with Phocis, their enemy. But being weary and unconscious of danger, they lay down in the market place and slept. When the wives of Amphissa heard this, they hastened to the spot, fearing lest the Chyades should suffer insult or injury; and, standing round the sleepers, waited till they had awakened, then tended them and gave them food. After which, having asked leave of their husbands, they led the wanderers from the city, safe unto the boundaries of their own land.

The scene is laid in the market place of Amphissa; in the foreground are several of the Chyades asleep; others are waking, and are being fed by the women of Amphissa, who stand about in large numbers; on the l. are various stalls. Signed, "L. Alma-Tadema, op. cclxxviii." Painted 1887. Canvas, 48 by 72 in.

LENT BY

199 IN A ROSE GARDEN.

THE DOWAGER LADY WIGAN.

Two girls, one of whom is lying at full length, with her head in the lap of the other, who is seated, upon a marble seat overhung by rose bushes; the latter is shaking the flowers and causing the petals to fall on the former; sea and sky in the background. Signed, "L. Alma-Tadema, op. ccxcviii." Painted 1889. Panel, 15 by 20 in.

200 THE VINTAGE FESTIVAL.

KUNST-HALLE, HAMBURG.

The interior of a temple. A procession is advancing from the r., and passing an altar on which is a smoking tripod; at the head of the procession is a priestess, who carries a flaming torch in her r. hand; she is followed by a band of maidens playing musical instruments, two priests carrying each a large wine jar, and a girl carrying a bunch of grapes and a vase in a basket. A crowd of worshippers in the court and on the steps to the l. survey the scene. Signed and dated, "L. Alma-Tadema, 1871." Canvas, 29 by 69 in.

201 A KISS.

SIR MAX WAECHTER.

A little girl, who has just come up a flight of steps leading down to a lake, in which are seen several figures bathing, is being kissed by a young woman who bends down towards her; an attendant looks down upon them. Signed, "L. Alma-Tadema, op. cccxii." Painted 1891. Panel, 18 by 24 in.

202 AFTER THE AUDIENCE.

HENRY J. MASON, ESQ.

See No. 51.

Agrippa is mounting the stairs and giving directions to the two slaves at the table as he goes; he is preceded by slaves bearing wands; on the r. is the crowd of suitors; at the foot of the stairs are the offerings they have left behind them. Signed, "L. Alma-Tadema, op. cxcvi." Painted 1879. (G.G.) Panel, 36 by 26 in.

LENT BY

203 Portrait of I. J. PADEREWSKI.

M. I. J. Paderewski.

Bust; full face, looking at the spectator; dark clothes; tapestry background. Signed, "L. Alma-Tadema, op. cccxi." Painted 1891. Canvas, 18 by 23 in.

204 AVE, CÆSAR! IO SATURNALIA.

Mrs. Williams.

See No. 46.

Claudius, who is only partly visible, and is shrinking behind curtains on the l., is being saluted as Emperor by the soldiers; at their feet lie the bodies of those who have perished in the massacre. Signed, "L. Alma-Tadema, op. ccxvii." Painted 1880. (G.G.) Panel, 9 by 18 in.

205 A GOLDEN HOUR.

W. E. Cain, Esq.

Bust of a girl, turned to r.; she is clasping with both hands and gazing at a statuette, which forms part of a large vase set upon a table. Signed, "L. Alma-Tadema, op. ccclxxxviii." Painted 1907. Canvas, 14 by 14 in. (square).
